Diamondhead residents do not want community split

BY TRACI BONNEY
Diamondhead residents concerned about a proposed redistricting plan that could splinter the community met at the Diamondhead country club Thursday night to learn more about the plan and to discuss their strategies.

Ned Boudreaux of the Gulf Regional Planning Commission met with the group of about 50 residents and explained to them the two plans currently under consideration.

The first would move District

5's southern border to take in 628 of Diamondhead's residents and would also move other lines to shift some of the county's district 5, the smallest in terms of population. The second plan would leave Diamondhead intact, but would highways 53 and 603. The redistricting is mandated by law following each decade's census. In the 1990 census, only districts 3 and 5 were out of compliance with population count statutes.

Boudreaux told those at the meeting that Diamondhead characteristically has a high voter turnout for elections. He said a split may or may not enable Diamondhead voters to control two supervisor districts in the future, depending on community growth in coming years. Paul Montjoy, manager of the community's Property Owners Association, told the audience

Bay council grants variance, okays television ordinance

BY TRACI BONNEY
After half an hour of discussion and debate, the Bay St. Louis city council granted Carrie Roques a one-foot variance on the carport at her Dunbar Avenue residence.

Roques requested the variance when it was found that her carport did not meet the setback requirement of 10 feet for a structure attached to the main residence. Her 13-foot-wide carport is only two feet from the property line, according to a survey submitted at the meeting.

Tommy Layne, Roques' son, said he would detach the carport from the house, which would mean the setback would have to be only five feet, then would take three feet off the structure. Therefore, a one-foot variance would be needed.

The variance was granted with the provision that if the work were not done in 30 days, the variance would be revoked.

A cable television franchise ordinance, expected by some audience members to take several minutes of meeting time, was quickly approved. Effective April 5, it allows Future Vision of Hattiesburg to start a franchise in the area and compete with existing franchise MultiVision.

The ordinance was approved 4-1, with council chairman Charles Scianna voting against it. When asked why, he said, "I don't think we need a second franchise in Bay St. Louis. Competition is generally good, but there are some things you don't want two of in one town: two phone companies, two electric companies, two cable companies."

The council also —withdrew an affidavit against J. Alvin Triche, who had been cited for a cleanup ordinance violation on the property where his house burned down in 1990.

—opened and took under advisement bids for fire hydrants, water and sewer fittings and bulletproof vests;

—discussed the possibility of holding a county-wide parade for the 135th National Guard unit and other military members in the Persian Gulf war when they return;

—and discussed two lawsuits against the city in executive session.

Bienville Steel to close industrial park facility

BY TRACI BONNEY
Bienville Steel will close its doors at the end of March, according to Harold "Buz" Olsen, executive director of the Hancock County Port and Harbor Commission.

"It's been on the brink of closing for some time now," Olsen said. "Business is somewhat down."

The company, a subsidiary of Orleans Material, fabricates steel for use in construction. Twenty of its 25 employees have other jobs secured.

The Port and Harbor Commission is working with Bienville Steel and the Gulf Coast Business Services Corporation to find employment for the other five employees, Olsen said.

"We're doing everything we can to help these people find work."

He added that the Port and Harbor Commission is also helping the company market its Port Bienville Industrial Park plant.

John Housey Jr., owner of the steel fabrication company, attributed the closure to lack of available work, and said the plant building will be put up for sale or lease.

When asked about possible plans for a future re-opening, he said, "Never say never. But if the economy doesn't pick up, I don't see it happening any time soon."

Bay police continue to nab tag offenders

BY TRACI BONNEY
The Bay St. Louis Police Department is using tag checks and roadblocks to ticket people who move into Mississippi but don't replace their out-of-state tags.

Police Chief Robert Lee said Tuesday that the police department has issued 18 tickets for tag offenders since the publication of an article about the problem in the February 24 edition of The Sea Coast Echo.

Anyone new to the area is required to purchase a Mississippi tag for his vehicle within 30 days. He is also required to obtain a Mississippi driver's license within 60 days.

Residents of the area are required to obtain vehicle tags within seven working days of the date a new or used vehicle is purchased.

If a person does not comply with the laws, he could be ticketed. If a person is ticketed, he could face an additional $250 fine when he does obtain his vehicle tag.

Supercomputer dedicated at Stennis Center

BY ELLIS CUEVAS
Dedication ceremonies were held Friday for a center housing the U.S. Navy's most powerful supercomputer at the Stennis Space Center in Hancock County.

Speaking at the event were Sen. Trent Lott of Mississippi, Mississippi Fifth District; U.S. Rep. Gene Taylor, Rear Adm. Geoffrey L. Chesbrough, Oceanographer of the Navy, and Rear Adm. James E. Koehr, Commander, Naval Oceanography Command.

The supercomputer, one of six supercomputers operated by the U.S. Navy, has greater computational capacity than the other five centers combined. With 128 million words of main memory, the supercomputer at Stennis is one of only 10 large memory systems in the world.

The cornerstone of the center is an eight-processor Cray Y-MP supercomputer provided by Cray Research Inc., Minneapolis, Minn. The supercomputer and its associated support systems are housed in approximately 12,600 gross square feet built specifically for this purpose at the Naval Oceanographic Office.

Grumman Data Systems Corporation, Woodbury, N.Y., procured and installed the systems and their allied subsystems under a $41 million contract signed in April 1990. Installation of the Cray Y-MP 8/8128 was completed in November 1990. Since then it has been running the highest resolution eddy-resolving ocean models for ocean basins in the world.

Congress has funded and authorized a second Class VII supercomputer and associated support systems for the Navy's Fleet Numerical Oceanography Center in Monterey, Calif. These systems are scheduled for installation during Fiscal Years 92 and 93.

The new computational support will be provided by an eight-processor Cray YMP-16 supercomputer with 128 mil-power is with the supervisors.

Evelyn McPhail, Republican party chairman for Mississippi and a Diamondhead resident, told those attending that the residents need to do two things: attend the redistricting public hearing scheduled for March 11, and stay in touch with the supervisors after that meeting. Several people at the meeting expressed the opinion that the supervisors want to splinter Diamondhead. No supervisors were present at the meeting. Lisa Coward, when contacted Friday, said, "I had no idea there even was a meeting. If I had known about it, I surely would have been there."

Montjoy said he thinks the McPhail said, "Looking at the supervisors will try to approve a redistricting plan quickly and submit it to the state for final approval. They may need to be slowed down," he commented. Several residents asked what the rate of growth would be one the two sides of a split, if the community's population were divided evenly. Montjoy said the side east of the split would grow more in the short term, for it." Some of those at the meeting discussed the idea of bringing the option of an even split before the supervisors at the public hearing, but Cliff Couture aware that the voters of Diamondhead won't sit by without voicing their views.

"We need to absolutely, unequivocally knock out the splintering," he stated. "We need to make sure the supervisors know we will be heard. They need to know that we may clap, or we may complain, but we will not be silent as Diamondhead."

Eddie Fernandez suggested that Montjoy and McPhail act as spokesmen at the public hearing.

Montjoy asked for a show of hands as to how many want to keep Diamondhead in one district. Most of the hands in the room were raised. Only two were in favor of an even split.

After some further discussion of the two options, the residents agreed to present the supervisors with their wish to keep Diamondhead in one district. The residents agreed that McPhail and Montjoy would speak in their behalf, and Montjoy urged them to make sure at least 20 or 30 people attend the public hearing, which is scheduled to start at 7 p.m. Monday in the board of supervisors room on the county courthouse's second floor.

"They need to know that we may clap, or we may complain, but we will not be silent at Diamondhead."

but the side west of the split would most likely grow more in the long term.

When asked what she thought the community's position should be about staying solid versus splitting evenly, long range — and I'm talking two or three years here, not 10 — if it were an even split, I'd go strongly objected to that.

"Why don't we keep Diamondhead together and go from there?" he said. "Don't go in there with an option. If you give them an option, they'll take it. We need to keep a united front on this."

Montjoy said the important thing is to make the supervisors

Lightning unsynchronizes lights

BY JACQUI COCHRAN

Officer Phillip Pavolini, representing the Waveland Police Department at Tuesday's city council meeting, helped to solve a question raised by Ward 2 Alderman Bob Hubbard, concerning the synchronization of the two Highway 90 lights at Highway 603 and McLaurin Street.

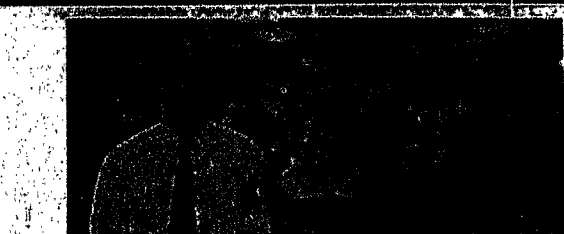

Pavolini explained that he was present directing traffic about a month ago when the lights malfunctioned after being hit by lightning.

He said the state highway department had to replace the box with an old timer system, until a new box could be ordered.

Pavolini reported that the state highway department would install another box as soon they had one.

Hubbard, satisfied with the explanation, asked that the board send a reminder to the highway department about the installation of the new box.

"QUOTABLE QUOTES"

By Ellis C. Cuevas

You may want to start preparing for the annual St. Patrick's Day Parade scheduled for next Saturday at 2 p.m. in Waveland.

The annual event is very popular and is sponsored by the Waveland Civic Association.

Beginning at 11 a.m., American Legion Auxiliary Unit 77 will feature its corned beef and cabbage dinner, along with Irish stew, hot dogs, desserts and refreshments.

This is a chance for the cooks to get out of the kitchen, and enjoy a parade too.

Proceeds from the dinner are used by the Auxiliary for community projects.

It sounds like Waveland will once again be hopping.

Many folks feel that on a national ranking for good things, Mississippi always appears to be on the bottom, and for bad things, on top.

This is really not always the case, and I feel we all have to start looking for the good things in which Mississippi is a national leader.

Take, for instance, supercomputer power. The state of Mississippi has one-fifth of the nation's supercomputer power.

The supercomputer which was dedicated on Friday at the John C. Stennis Space Center here in Hancock County, along with the computers used by the U.S. Corps of Engineers at Vicksburg, gives Mississippi 20 percent of the nation's supercomputer power, according to U.S. Congressman Trent Lott.

Computers are the way to go today and will be for many years to come.

Just think, the supercomputer at the Naval Oceanographic Command has 128 million words of central memory.

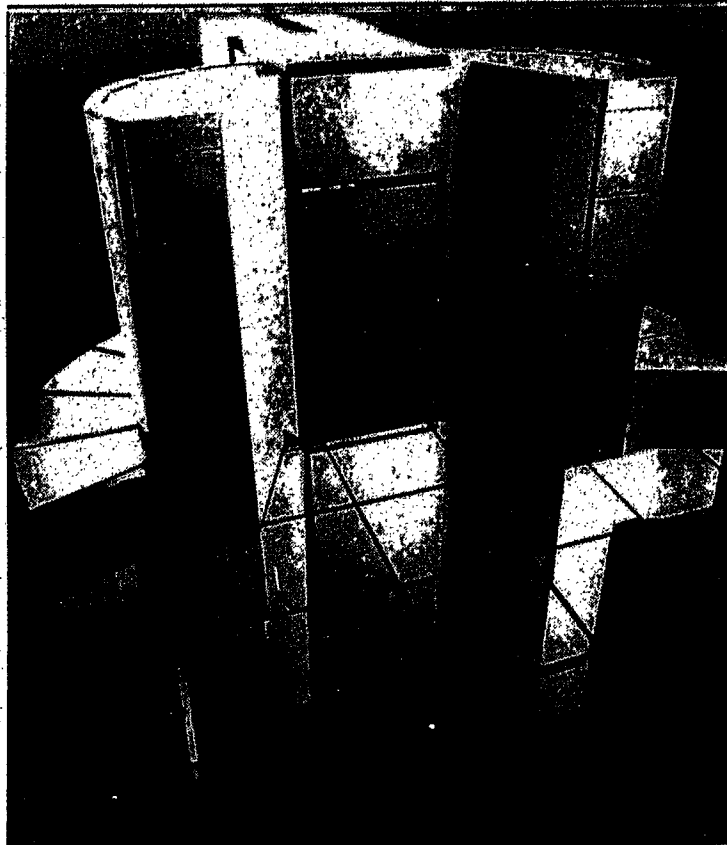

To give you the magnitude of this, the system at Stennis is capable of achieving 2.65 billion floating point operations per second. As an example, the system is capable of going through the entire multiplication tables 10.8 million times per second, according to the U.S. Naval Oceanographic Office.

I realize we may not be familiar with some of those technical terms, but the multiplications tables are something many of us older folks had to learn for math when we were in elementary school.

This equipment used by the Naval Oceanographic Office at Stennis plays an important role in the defense of our nation. It also helps in many other things, including the prediction of our weather.

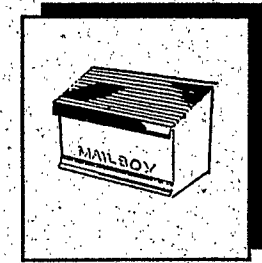

I would like to wish everyone associated with the supercomputer the best of luck in the years to come and thank those who had the foresight to push for such a fantastic piece of equipment.

By the way, all Hancock Countians should be proud of the fact that we have the nation's most powerful computer in operation in our county.

Cornerstone

The cornerstone of the supercomputer center dedicated at the John C. Stennis Space Center on Friday, is an eight-processor Cray Y-MP supercomputer provided by Cray Research Inc., Minneapolis, Minn. With a memory of 128 million words, the supercomputer at the Naval Oceanographic Office at Stennis is one of only 10 large memory systems in the world.

Readers side with council's attorney

To the Editor,

In response to a statement attributed to Mr. Joe Ethridge, as being made during the Bay St. Louis city council's meeting of Tuesday, March 5, as reported in The Sea Coast Echo, we would like to offer the following comments:

We believe Mr. Ethridge's statement accusing Mr. John Scaife "of being unethical in speaking at a Planning and Zoning Committee public hearing without informing the public that he owns beachfront property at a potential site for gaming," to be irresponsible and insulting, not only to the integrity of Mr. Scaife, but also insulting to the intelligence of all interested parties as well.

This statement appears to infer that Mr. Scaife's comments were self-serving when, to the best of our recollection, the statements were technical in nature, made in response to a request for clarification of the boundaries of the current C-3 zoning along Beach Boulevard. Further, it appears as though Mr. Ethridge assumes the public will accept his accusations as stated, without question, thereby being subjected to further misinformation.

The Echo's report also contains a quote from Rev. Nathan Barber, as follows: "Don't believe everything they want you to believe." Although this word of caution offered by Rev. Barber concerned another area of discussion, it is our opinion that we all would be well advised to heed its warning, as it seems to have universal appeal.

Sincerely,
Jim and Linda Henrie

Praise due to President for winning war strategy

Dear Editor,

As one who has supported President Bush in his desire to free Kuwait, I am overjoyed that this has been accomplished.

The bombing and shooting has stopped, but as Yogi Berra would say, "It ain't over until it's over."

As long as Saddam Hussein remains in Iraq, there will always be trouble, and yet, if the "Spawn of the Devil" is given asylum in Algeria or some other place, he will leave behind his henchmen and the Iraqis who were behind him all the way.

His best planes are safe in Iran, and who knows how much military hardware is safely hidden in bunkers three stories deep?

Kuwait, Saudi Arabia and that small nation, the United Arab Emirates and Oman and Yemen will always have to be on their guard.

If Saddam had been allowed to keep Kuwait, he eventually would have control of the Persian Gulf waters leading to the Gulf of Oman, the Arabian Sea, the Gulf of Eden into the Red Sea and finally the Gulf of Suez and the Suez Canal.

You may say, "But he has no navy." With the wealth from the oilfields of these countries he could have a navy in no time.

We Americans should thank the Lord that we have a president who went about his country's business and let his generals fight the war.

The reason we lost the war in Vietnam was because a president sat in the White House and told the generals when and where to bomb; at least that is what the news media has always said.

In World War II the popular song was "Praise the Lord and pass the ammunition." In this war it is the "Star Spangled Banner."

As always, God bless America.

Respectfully,
Nina S. Garcia

Bay council's support of gaming should be carefully scrutinized

To the Editor:

This letter is in response to the Echo story of March 7 concerning the Bay city council meeting two nights previous. Members of the council indicated that they were not knowledgeable of the contents of recently passed House Bill 1597. This bill was passed on Thursday, Feb. 28. The board was made aware of the bill at the meeting by Peggy Dutton.

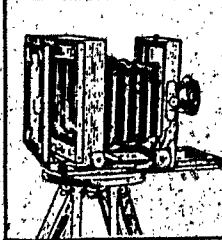

The Sea Coast Echo of March 3 has as its top story the passage, and some of the provisions of this bill. Mention of this bill was also made by WLOX-TV and The Sun Herald. I will give the council credit for responding swiftly once they were informed of the bill and its contents; a copy of the bill was provided to the council and mayor by Franya Ethridge.

City attorney Scaife was questioned about his beachfront property, and some questions arose concerning first his judgement, then possibly his ethics in speaking at the Planning and Zoning Committee public hearings on gaming zoning.

Mr. Scaife's response was long-winded and showing much pride in his accomplishments (justifiably so). He indicated he has had interests for many

Weapons only as good as soldiers who operate them

In the past two months, the American press has paid a great deal of attention to weapon systems that were being used by our troops in Saudi Arabia and Kuwait. Tomahawk Cruise Missile, the Patriot Missile and M-1A Tanks have become household words.

In every instance, these weapons exceeded our expectations. However, we should never forget that these weapons, made by highly skilled Americans, would be practically useless if it were not for the remarkable soldiers, sailors, airmen and Marines who operated them.

As a member of the Armed Services Committee—a committee that is charged with the responsibility of determining which weapon systems will be purchased by our nation—I take a great deal of satisfaction in the fact that the weapon systems we decided to purchase worked well.

As an American, I take greater pride in our men and women in uniform.

To a large extent we can credit the remarkably low number of casualties to weapons like the Patriot Missile and the Tomahawk Cruise Missile. We must continue to research, develop and deploy such weapons. But let us never forget that the weapons are only as good as the men and women who stood behind them and that the war was won by these brave and dedicated young people.

There are thousands of stories of bravery, but for the sake of brevity, I would like to mention two incidents:

Before tanks and other heavy weapons could push through the massive Iraq defenses in the desert, American foot soldiers crawled under the cover of darkness to remove landmines and mark a path of invasion. No high tech gadgets, just brave well-trained Marines.

Another incredible display of courage involves the much publicized American flag of the American embassy in Kuwait.

The media reported that our nation's flag was never removed from the embassy, despite months of Iraqi occupation. In truth, a group of U.S. Marines infiltrated the Iraqi-occupied city the night before and restored the flag to its rightful place.

On behalf of the people of South Mississippi, I want to congratulate our men and women in uniform for a job well done. And to the families of our guardsmen and reservists who have been called to active duty, we will work to see to it that your loved ones can return home soon.

ON PATROL

SHOOTING

Hancock County Sheriff's Investigator Nathan Hoda reported Friday the arrest of a former auxiliary deputy in connection with a shooting on Interstate 10 Thursday.

Hoda said William Krause, 47, of Slidell, La., was arrested and charged with aggravated assault after a call was received at 1:19 p.m. that a shooting had occurred on I-10.

According to Hoda, Sumner D. Bearman, 59, of Oceanside, Calif., reported that he and his 14-year-old daughter Danielle were eastbound on I-10 between the Jourdan River bridge and the Diamondhead exit when a person in a blue Buick station wagon came alongside Bearman's Suburban truck and fired three shots into the right rear window, then turned off at the Diamondhead exit.

"He said he was scared to stop and kept going until he got to Stuckey's, then called the Highway Patrol," Hoda said.

The Mississippi Highway Patrol and Harrison County sheriff's deputies assisted in the investigation. Hancock Sheriff's Investigator Matt Karl found the Buick parked at the Hancock Bank in Diamondhead, and Bearman identified Krause as the one who fired the shots, Hoda said.

He added that since Krause, who was released on bond, is a former auxiliary deputy, the case was turned over to Investigator Johnny Fox with the Highway Patrol.

Hoda reported that the incident was reported to have been spurred on by an altercation between the two drivers when one wouldn't allow the other to pass.

Police Record

The following incidents and misdemeanor arrests were reported by the Bay St. Louis Police Department for the week of March 4-8:

- 1 DUI
- 1 driving without a license
- 2 harassing phone calls
- 1 curfew violation
- 1 disorderly conduct
- 2 malicious mischief
- 5 improper car tags
- 2 cars without tags

Investigator David Parker said the Bay St. Louis Police Department urges all Hancock County residents to report any suspicious activity, people or vehicles in their neighbors to the proper law enforcement officials, who will respond to any and all calls as quickly as they can.

MILITARY MENTION

SEAMAN YORK

Navy Seaman Recruit Shannon S. York, daughter of Daniel B. and Dawn R. York of Bay St. Louis, has completed recruit training at Recruit Training Command, Orlando, Fla.

During York's eight-week training cycle, she studied general military subjects designed to prepare her for further academic and on-the-job training in one of the Navy's 85 basic fields.

Her studies included seamanship, close order drill, Naval history and first aid. Personnel who complete this course of instruction are eligible for three hours of college credit in physical education and hygiene.

A 1989 graduate of Hancock High School, she joined the Navy in October, 1990.

Scafide, Franckiewicz call trailer park lawsuit 'frivolous'

BY TRACI BONNEY

Both Sen. Vic Franckiewicz and Bay St. Louis city attorney John Scafide say a lawsuit filed against them by trailer park owner J. Alvin Triche is frivolous.

Scafide said, "There's absolutely no basis in fact to the allegations. In my opinion, it's a frivolous lawsuit."

The lawsuit includes the city of Bay St. Louis, Hancock County, the state of Mississippi and three as yet unnamed insurance companies. It accuses Scafide and Franckiewicz of conspiring while Franckiewicz was mayor to prevent Triche and William A. Hart Sr. from developing a trailer park because Scafide owned and operated a trailer park which would then be in competition with Triche's park.

The state is included in the suit because Triche alleges that Franckiewicz continued to thwart the park's development after he became a senator.

Franckiewicz said, "I heard he was going to sue us, but I thought he would say we were being arbitrary and capricious for not approving it earlier. In my wildest imagination, I never dreamed that he could have concocted such a hare-brained conspiracy."

Triche and Hart are asking for at least $600,000 in damages plus $1 million in punitive damages. According to the lawsuit, they filed plans for the subdivision in 1985.

Plans for the subdivision, called Blue Meadow Ridge and located just outside the Bay St. Louis city limits, got underway while the Waveland Regional Wastewater Management District was involved in a program to improve and expand its system.

The city eventually agreed to take on the subdivision's wastewater and sewage until the county wastewater district was created and able to serve the area, then agreed in 1989 to extend water lines to the subdivision.

According to council minutes, Triche asked the city in 1990 to sign an addendum to an earlier agreement. In the addendum, both parties acknowledged the subdivision's water system did not conform to the original specifications.

The county planning commission, which was named in the suit, will be represented by Lucien Gex, who was appointed to the case by the board of supervisors at its Monday meeting.

Crime commission present seminar

The Mississippi Coast Crime Commission will present a free training seminar on court testimony, cross examination techniques and countering trick questions for law enforcement officers from Harrison, Hancock, Jackson and Stone counties on March 15 at the new Harrison County jail.

The four-hour session is expected to attract a large number of officers since effective courtroom testimony is essential to efficient law enforcement.

Seminar speaker is Tommy Luke, who has presented this program nationwide for federal and state law enforcement agencies. Luke is a former FBI agent who teaches criminal law at Hinds Junior College and is an instructor at the U.S. Probation Academy.

MCCO Executive Director Jerry Brown plans additional training sessions for area law enforcement officers to supplement their training at the law

years in and around Bay St. Louis.

Only after the council meeting was almost adjourned was it revealed that Mr. Scafide had actually purchased this property in April of 1990. It was revealed only then to correct Councilman Wilkerson who was addressing the council and the press before the council went into executive session.

Councilman Wilkerson's remarks seemed to me to occur at an opportune moment for Mr. Scafide and the council. The public forum was long since over, and only six citizens remained at the meeting.

While it is possible that Mr. Wilkerson was grandstanding for the press, I think he could have made his comments while the public was present and could respond.

As to Mayor Favre's contact with attorney Carter Bise of Gulfport to act as special counsel for the city, I think this falls in line with the mayor's stance on gambling.

If my recollection is correct, Carter Bise was shown on television supporting gambling and asking the voters to vote in favor of the issue. The mayor has given the impression that the total of the Bay council and other city leaders are in favor of gambling.

He has supported this stance by passing out flyers with a "Special Message from Mayor Eddie Favre" two days before the election. Mayor Favre showed up at each public hearing concerning the zoning of gaming, yet he would never address the public with his reasons for supporting the issue or to show the benefits it will provide for the city, although he was asked to speak at each meeting.

The amount of revenue generated by the gaming in Hancock County and forwarded to the City of Bay St. Louis would probably not annually support the cost of one extra patrolman's salary, insurance, overhead and other cost associated with a cop.

If we are to believe what we have been told about the size of the projects being planned for the Bay St. Louis area, we will need more than one more patrolman. I urge the residents of Bay St. Louis to contact your councilman and mayor and ask why they are not informed and what the real interests of our city leaders are for Bay St. Louis.

Thank you,
William B. Eslick

1945-50 Golden Eagles sought for upcoming reunion

To the Editor:
We need your help! We've scheduled "The World's Largest 1945 to 1950 Golden Eagle Reunion" for former students who attended Mississippi Southern University in Hattiesburg during that time.

This is not a reunion for graduates only, but a reunion for anyone who attended for a day, or a year. There is a large number of people we've lost track of and cannot locate, so we're asking your help in spreading the news.

There will be a get-acquainted party Friday night with lots of hugging, kissing and talking. Saturday night we'll have the Big Band Night with an 18-piece orchestra playing all those favorite 1945 to 1950 tunes. Sunday we'll have a brunch with speeches, toasts, a surprise or two before the final farewell.

But we need your help in finding those "lost" friends so that no one will miss this first and last reunion.

Information sought on former Waveland resident

To the Editor:
I am researching for an historical article and would appreciate help from anyone with information about my subject, Mr. William A. Dolan.

Mr. Dolan lived in Waveland, Junction from 1948 until 1954. He and his wife, Lucille or Lucy Dolan, lived on the corner of Nicholson and McLaurin street on land belonging to Mr. Emilio C. Dolan where they operated a curio store and bait stand.

Mr. Dolan had a daughter, Mrs. Dolan, who lived in Hattiesburg, Mississippi, and she had four children. Mrs. Dolan's father supposedly lived in Bay St. Louis. Mr. Dolan worked for Fricke's Sawmill, Chuck Fisher and a Dr. Dix performing odd jobs.

It is believed that he drowned in the Mississippi River at Chalmette, La. in February of 1954 and is buried in Cedar Rest Cemetery in Bay St. Louis. If anyone has any information about this person, please contact me at P.O. Box 32, Pass Christian, MS 39571 or at 452-3299.

Reflections

On Life

By Father Jerome
LeDoux, SVD.

Let them err

My cousin leaned frantically on the rectory doorbell on her way home from work. With the left side of my face still full of shaving cream, I opened the door only to have her practically collapse into me in a flood of tears. I ushered her into the living room and asked her to wait until I cleared the lather away.

"My sister, oh my sister!" she groaned as I sat down beside her. "I didn't know that was her reason for calling me! She just told me on the telephone that she's leaving the Church!"

"Leaving the Church?" I gasped in astonishment. "Yes, leaving the Church!" she returned emphatically. "I don't know what she can find anywhere else which she cannot find in her own Church! None of us has ever left the Church!"

By this time, her whole face was wet as she convulsed almost continuously with huge sobs. She kept repeating that her sister had told her that she was leaving the Church. "Do you want me to call her and talk to her about her reasons for leaving the Church?" I asked.

"Yes!" she said. "Call her!" Almost non-stop talk greeted me when her sister answered the phone. A flood of scriptural quotes and exhortations told me that there would be no turning back for her. In her own words, "The more my family and others try to dissuade me, the more convinced I become that I should make a break at this time!"

Mainly, she was upset that, in her view, there was not enough Scripture used and taught in church and elsewhere. She also complained that people were giving lip service to the teachings of Jesus, but in reality continuing to immerse themselves in gossip, selfishness and many forms of unbecoming behavior.

She had my undivided attention, of course, as I sat listening with hardly a question or comment. Eventually, she got to the final straw which had broken the camel's back: the refusal of her pastor to let her continue informal Bible sharing sessions at hers and at the homes of a circle of friends.

Her principal objection was that the pastor insisted that she use an approved study manual and that she join the Bible study group already in progress at the church.

In retrospect, what she and the others were conducting at the homes was not Bible study, which always includes formal references, but Bible sharing. Further, it would seem that the best thing the pastor could have done would have been to invite himself to the sessions with an open mind.

If there are some errors spouting during Bible sharing, no harm is done provided that the discussion can be steered gently toward the studies of Christian scholars.

"Then, again," I reflected, "what is so terrible about one's leaving the Catholic Church for a nondenominational or other church, as long as the person is acting in good conscience?" Not that such is to be encouraged, but surely the Holy Spirit manages to work through a sincere conscience and an open mind.

An even closer relative and his wife straddled the fence for years between denominations because they wanted to preach, which they eventually did with nondenominationalism.

After a decade of outside preaching, they came full circle through an opportunity to share the Bible with Catholic Charismatics and prison parolees.

Being allowed to err in good conscience is a privilege to which all people of every denomination or condition are entitled. All God asks is that we leave the way wide open for the Holy Spirit.

Kelloggs named administrators at Waveland's Gulfside Assembly

A husband-and-wife team, Nora and Charles Kellogg, are new administrators at the Gulfside Assembly, a United Methodist Conference Center in Waveland.

They succeed Mrs. Marian Martin who has been acting executive director for the past two years. She returned to her staff job with the United Methodist General Board of Global Ministries in New York City.

The two new co-directors are both natives of Ohio and most recently lived in Cleveland Heights, Ohio. Prior to their early retirements, they had lived in Evanston, Ill., Nashville, Tenn., and Spring Valley, N.Y.

Mrs. Kellogg spent most of her professional career as a teacher in Illinois, Tennessee, South Carolina and Ohio. She was a math specialist. She started her career working for the General Board of Education of the Methodist Church, Nashville, as a field work specialist in church school development.

Her avocational activities have included dramatic work at the famed Karamu House, Cleveland, Ohio, Techny Theatre in Techny, Ill., and the Red Carpet Theatre in New York City.

Mrs. Kellogg received her BA degree from Clark-Atlanta University, Atlanta, Ga., and her MA degree from Columbia College, Chicago, Ill. Additional studies included work at the Oberlin School of Theology and Gammon Theological Seminary in Atlanta, Ga.

Dr. Kellogg, an educator by profession, retired in 1989 after 25 years with the General Boards of Laity, Discipleship and Global Ministries, located in Evanston, Ill., Nashville, Tenn., and New York, N.Y., respectively. His teaching career was at the college and high school level in North Carolina and Ohio.

On the executive staff of the general boards, he was assigned leadership development responsibilities in the area of training lay persons, United Methodist Men, and relating to Health and Welfare Ministries of the United Methodist Church.

In this last relationship with the Board of Global Ministries, much of his work related to affiliated United Methodist institutions across the country.

He also had responsibility for administering the Harry R. Kendall Hospital and Home Fund, which has the potential, at maturity of being valued at $40 million. One to $2 million grants are currently made annually.

He was born and reared in a Methodist parsonage. He is an alumnus of Wittenberg University and has been honored by the three United Methodist Colleges with honorary doctorates. Rust College, Holly Springs, honored him in this way in 1988.

He is not new to the Gulf Coast, having served on the Gulfside Trustee Board for the past 16 years.

Dr. and Mrs. Kellogg have three adult children, a son in Evanston, Ill., a daughter in Charlotte, N.C., and a daughter in Boston, Mass.

SHOPPING UP A STORM

By Katy McGuire Caire

Meat specials claim attention at our area supermarkets, with beef bottom round roasts and steaks, shoulder steaks, boneless sirloins, chuck roasts and such on display.

Baking hens are also offered at special prices; and fryer leg quarters are the usual good buy. More and more seasonal vegetables are showing up in the produce bins, as are harvest-fresh fruits of various sorts; so roll that shopping basket up and down the aisles and snare some of those good buys! Fresh, frozen and canned seafood is also offered at good prices.

You may even try your hand at "ruffles and flourishes" at table, substituting more thrifty cuts of beef steak for the more costly traditional chateaubriand of French cuisine in this:

NIFTY THRIFTY CHATEAUBRIAND

2 lbs. shoulder steak or boneless sirloin or round

Freshly ground black pepper
Meat tenderizer
1/2 cup brandy or blended whiskey

1/4 cup soft butter
1/2 tsp. salt

1 tsp. Worcestershire sauce
2 tsp. lemon juice

2 Tbsp. minced parsley
Trim the steak, reserving the fat, and season with pepper to your liking—I like a lot!

Sprinkle with meat tenderizer. Pour the quarter cup brandy or whiskey onto a plate and dip the meat in this, both sides, then set aflame.

After the flames have died down, let the meat stand to marinate for 2 hours. When ready, heat the fat trimmings in a heavy skillet (I prefer a cast iron skillet) to make three tablespoons or so of hot drippings, adding butter if necessary.

Brown the meat quickly on each side, pan broiling until done to your taste, approximately eight minutes or less to a side, spooning off any fat which accumulates, so as to give the broiled quality to the steak.

Remove the steak to a warm platter. Drain off all excess fat from the skillet, and add butter, salt, Worcestershire sauce and lemon juice and just a bit of water, stirring to loosen all those good particles or "burnings" from the skillet. Stir in the minced parsley and pour over the meat.

And, for a final special effect, to the Final Flaming: Fill a large serving spoon with the remaining brandy or whiskey. Hold over the meat and ignite with a match, covering the meat with flaming spirits. As the flames die down, spoon the sauce over the meat. Cut into thin, diagonal slices to serve.

Here's a quick and tasty way to use beef round steak, or flank steak, from the Argo Corntarch files. Here's:

SPICY ORANGE BEEF

1 lb. beef round or flank steak, thinly sliced on the diagonal

2 Tbsp. corn oil

1/4 cup slivered orange peel

1 minced clove of garlic

1/2 tsp. ground ginger

2 Tbsp. Argo Cornstarch

1 cup cool beef broth

1/4 cup soy sauce

1/4 cup dry sherry

1/4 cup orange marmalade

1/2 tsp. crushed dried red pepper

In a wok or large skillet, heat the corn oil over medium high heat, and add the beef one-third at a time. Stir fry 3 minutes, or until browned, then return all the beef to the pan. Add the slivered orange peel, the garlic and the ground ginger, and stir fry for a minute.

Stir together the corn starch, broth, soy sauce, sherry, marmalade and red pepper, and stir into the beef. Bring to a boil, stirring all the while, over medium heat, then boil for one minute. Serve over rice. (Four servings)

If you've picked up some chicken, you may easily cook Spicy Orange Chicken, instead, to vary this recipe. Use a pound of boneless, skinless chicken breasts, thinly sliced, and a cup of cool chicken broth; or you may also use other chicken pieces, thickly sliced. At times, I like to use minced fresh ginger root in place of the ground ginger, but add it to taste, as it can be hotter than hot!

Cooking cabbage

St. Patrick's Day or any day, vegetable is source of Vitamin C

There may be a lot of blarney over St. Patrick's Day weekend, but there will be delicious amounts of traditional foods served, too.

Corned beef and boiled potatoes head the list, followed by a multitude of delightful fare, including Irish Soda Bread. For the "wearing of the green," at the table, cabbage takes the honors.

Cabbage, a member of one of the oldest and largest vegetable families, is a natural partner for corned beef. The Irish, however, were not the ones to introduce the cabbage plant to this continent.

A Frenchman, Jacques Cartier, brought plants over in the mid-16th century. Today, cabbage is grown in practically every part of our country and is available in our grocery stores throughout the entire year.

There are basically five types of cabbage that are raised in substantial amounts for commercial use in the U.S. These include: Danish, Domestic, Pointed, Red, and Savoy.

Danish is a late maturing cabbage that is used mainly for late fall marketing and for storage. Much of the fresh cabbage we buy throughout the winter is from this category. The head is whitish-green and round to oval in shape.

Domestic cabbage is available in both flat and round shaped varieties. The heads are usually less compact and more tender than the Danish type. The leaves are crumpled or curled and green in color.

This cabbage is an early to mid-season crop; and is the main one usually available in the early summer months. Domestic is grown for both the fresh market and for processing into sauerkraut.

Pointed cabbage can easily be recognized by its pointed or conical shaped head. The heads tend to be smaller than either the Danish or Domestic.

The Pointed type is most often grown in the Southern regions of the United States, and marketed in early spring.

Red cabbage is the easily recognizable red or purple colored cabbage we find in the stores. It's used mainly for pickling and salad purposes.

The inner parts of the leaves are white, and combined with the purple exteriors, make a colorful addition to any salad.

Savoy cabbage has loosely formed heads that are usually flattened, but may be round or pointed. It's yellowish-green in color and is readily identified by the crinkling leaf tissues throughout the leaves and head. There is less of this type available in this country than the other four types.

Cabbage is a good source of Vitamin C - if you treat it with care. Keep the outer green leaves attached to the head, unless they are completely wilted or damaged. These greener leaves also happen to contain more nutrients than the paler, inner leaves.

Shred or slice cabbage carefully with a sharp knife before using this vegetable. A dull knife may bruise the cabbage, and advance cutting causes additional loss of vitamins.

If cooking the cabbage, cook it quickly. If you cook it until it's tender, yet still crisp, you'll find much of the delicate flavor is retained.

When boiled, shredded cabbage should take from 5 to 8 minutes to reach this stage. Wedges should take approximately 10 to 12 minutes.

Meatless lasagna is Lenten main dish

2 cups shredded mozzarella cheese (8 ounces)
Mix spaghetti sauce and zucchini. Spread 1 cup mixture in ungreased rectangular baking dish, 11x7x1 1/2 inches; top with 3 uncooked noodles.

Mix ricotta cheese, Parmesan cheese and oregano; spread over noodles in dish. Spread with 1 cup of the sauce mixture.

Top with remaining noodles, sauce mixture and the mozzarella cheese. Bake uncovered in 350 oven until hot and bubbly, about 45 minutes. Let stand 10 minutes before cutting.

Supercomputer

lion words of central memory. It will replace an existing supercomputer which has been in use there since 1982.

Together the two supercomputers at Stennis and Monticello, along with related file management, storage and networks, will become known as the Primary Oceanographic Prediction System (POPS). POPS will provide the computing capability to model and predict features in the world's oceans and atmosphere to an accuracy never before achieved. This accuracy will affect the success or failure of weapon and sensor systems deployed on U.S. Navy ships, aircraft and submarines worldwide.

POPS will be the foundation of a comprehensive production and distribution configuration from which atmospheric and oceanographic predictions will be input to weapons selection and employment, assessment of sensor performance and on-scene tactical decisions.

The system at Stennis will be used to conduct scientific research at the Naval Oceanographic and Atmospheric Research Laboratory and the Institute for Naval Oceanography, both located at the Stennis Space Center. It will also support research projects sponsored by the Chief of Naval Research at universities and laboratories nationwide. These scientists will be able to submit jobs for the supercomputer without leaving their desks.

In addition to the research being carried out on the system, the Naval Oceanographic Office will use it to produce local scale forecasts of the movement of water masses in the ocean as these affect the transmission of sound in the sea.

In 1982, Navy scientists and operators in the Naval Oceanographic Command determined the need for a Class VII supercomputer. Two years later, then-Secretary of the Navy John Lehman made acquisition of such a system, one of his 14 initiatives to "reinvigorate" the naval oceanography program.

Senator Lott talked about the incorporation of so many to make this supercomputer a reality. Lott said, "This supercomputer combined with the U.S. Corps of Engineers in Vicksburg, gives Mississippi 20% of the nation's supercomputer power."

Congressman Gene Taylor, alluded to the importance of the United States building up its Submarine and Merchant Marine fleets in order to stay abreast, as the Soviets are placing emphasis on quantity and quality.

Rear Admiral Koehr heralded today's ribbon-cutting as "one-half of that 1980's dream... the dream shared by Senator John Stennis and by then-Congressman Trent Lott and subsequently endorsed by Congressman Gene Taylor for a premier center of oceanography in Mississippi."

He added, "This supercomputer center that we dedicate here today will be the cornerstone of future fleet support—to increasingly technical Naval weapon and sensor systems, and to all operations above, below and on the surface. Recent events in the Middle East have taught us anew the importance of air/ocean prediction in the success of these operations."

The Naval Oceanographic Command is a worldwide organization comprised of approximately 3,000 officer, enlisted and civilian personnel located at some 60 locations. Its headquarters are at the Stennis Space Center. The Naval Oceanographic Office and the Fleet Numerical Oceanography Center are the command's two largest components.

Ribbon cutting

Those participating in the ribbon cutting ceremonies on Friday at the John C. Stennis Space Center for the Naval Oceanographic Office's Supercomputer were from right, Rear Admiral Geoffrey L. Chesbrough, Oceanographer of the Navy; United States Senator Trent Lott, United States Congressman Gene Taylor and Rear Admiral James E. Koehr, commander, Naval Oceanographic Command. Files

The Permanent File Computer System controls data migration to the Cray supercomputer and all other systems connected to the POPS. The new computer system at Stennis will support research projects sponsored by the Chief of Naval Research at universities and laboratories nationwide.

Most powerful

This is the Navy's most powerful computing system and one of the most powerful systems in the world. It is a supercomputer working individually or collectively for a single computation, share a 128 million word memory. The U.S. Navy has a supercomputer and the one at the Naval Oceanographic Office at Stennis is more powerful than the other five combined.

Hancock County Human Services Complex is open for business

Finally all under one roof, the Hancock County Human Services Complex officially opened this week. A bond issue enabled the county to execute the $1.2 million building project. An April 5, 1990 groundbreaking began the construction of the complex, which houses five offices - the Mississippi State Welfare Department of Health, the Cooperative Extension Office, the Welfare Department, the Social Services Department and the Mississippi State Employment Service.

THE SEA COAST ECHO—SUNDAY, MARCH 10, 1991-1B

THOMAS H. TOUPS

Chief,
I was talking to one of my confidential informants and heard about a massive gathering of old vehicles in northern Hancock County.

I know what you like — that hard-nosed, roll-up-the ol'-shirt-sleeves investigative reporting that makes the 60 Minutes crew so generally obnoxious. This seemed like a story I could get my teeth into.

Antique cars! Hmmm, they were probably violating all manner of federal safety regulations and I was willing to bet that there wasn't a pollution control device amongst the lot. Intrigue in? Just where were those airbags?

Since this was to be an antique car rally, I figured I'd shoot the whole thing on antique cameras and just sorta' blend in with the crowd (sneaky, eh?).

Upon arrival, I immediately ran into trouble. Everyone I spoke to was suspiciously willing to answer any questions I asked and pretended to cooperate fully with all of my requests. I did of course, recognize this as part of an ingenious disinformation campaign.

A woman who identified herself as Arline Eschete claimed that this event was a function of the Antique Automobile Club of America. She further said that this rally was sponsored by the local chapter, The Catahoula Region AACA (Junque Collectors Club) and that she was president of the local chapter. The event was being held on the estate of Jerry and Linda Page, founders of the local chapter.

A plume of smoke drifting up from behind a cluster of motor homes drew my interest and I walked over to investigate. Probably maniacal hot-rodders from one of the group's radical sects, tuning up some monster illegal engine! Camera at the ready, I walked around the campers and was confronted by several men, wreathed in smoke, barbecuing a pig! This story was on the line. These men said that they were with the St. Bernard chapter of the AACA and had provided the pig as their contribution to the event. Absolutely airtight story. I couldn't find even a crack, much less a hole in their explanation.

One thing was certain; this vehicular cabal was much larger than I'd initially suspected. AACA chapters represented included the St. Bernard, Deep South, Gulf Coast, Heart of Dixie, Horseless Carriage, Pineville Antique Auto and Slidell clubs. The Biloxi chapter showed up in strength and received a plaque for largest attendance.

There were car games, a 52-mile road rally which tested drivers' navigational skills (and was won by Eric Gould and Lisa Hover) and a pot luck dinner.

Ah, yes, the pot luck dinner. As the smell of roasting pork drifted under my nostrils and ladies began to load the tables with various Mississippi delicacies, my resolve to crack this story began to weaken. Mrs. Page spotted the symptoms immediately and craftily offered me a plate. The whole thing was patently suspicious on the face of it, but I told myself that if I could only make it through dinner, I'd get to the bottom of the story. Shortly after my second helping of Creole gumbo, I was ready.

That's when they brought out the big guns. Someone offered me a slice of chocolate cream pie.

Well, Chief, I'm sorry to admit that I don't remember much of what happened after that. Their underhanded cream pie conspiracy was my undoing and I never did find out what those people were really up to. Later, going through my notes I found Jerry Page's phone number (255-7384). Anyone with an interest in antique cars, who is willing to subject himself to this kind of torture might want to give him a call, but I refuse to take any responsibility for their waistlines.

CLUBS, AUXILIARIES

American Legion Auxiliary Post 77

The March 5 meeting of Post 77 Auxiliary was well attended. President Janice Carver called the meeting to order. Elaine Lytell and Earline Ruhr advanced the colors and Mary Caillier gave the opening prayer.

After all members recited the Pledge of Allegiance and the Preamble, various committee members gave their reports.

On March 16, the annual corned beef and cabbage dinner will be in the Post Hall, following the Waveland Civic Association parade. In addition, hot dogs, cakes, drinks and other items will be sold at reasonable prices.

Due to the success of the Tuesday morning bingo, three 'pain machines' have been donated to the Biloxi VA Hospital. These machines are very expensive, but worth every dime. They are used to alleviate the pain of veterans who are unable to take pain medication orally or by injection.

Funds were also donated to the Ronald McDonald House in New Orleans, the Hancock County Youth Court, and for an Easter party for the Gulfport VA facility patients.

Get-well wishes were extended to members Marian Marsh, Amelia Killeen, Lorraine Norton, Irene Giacconi and Helena Coleman.

All members are asked once again to bring canned goods to the meeting on April 2, as the Food Pantry is having a hard time giving good to all who need it.

"Now that the situation in the Persian Gulf is not as dangerous as it was in the beginning, let's keep on flying our American flags and praying for the safe return of our servicemen and women," said an auxiliary spokesman.

After the colors were retired and the closing prayer, refreshments were served to all.

Coast Jazz Society

Members of the Mississippi Coast Jazz Society will hold their March meeting at the Royal d'Iberville Hotel, Biloxi, in the Crystal Ball Room Monday, March 25 at 7:30 p.m.

The main event of the evening will be the induction into the Jazz Hall of Fame of famed trumpeter Charles Barsdley of Ocean Springs. There will be the usual superb dance music available.

Guests are always welcome at $3 a couple. Yearly memberships will also be available at $15 for families and $10 singles.

American Legion Auxiliary Unit 139

The monthly birthday party, sponsored by the Clement R. Bon Temps American Legion Auxiliary Unit 139 and co-hosted by Roslyn Weathers and Oris Planchard, was Thursday, Feb. 28, for residents of the Hotel Reed Nursing Center.

Lena Mae Oustalet played the piano, Roslyn Weathers led the singing, and Oris Planchard, Elaine Roberts, Jackie Bufkin and Pat Turnipseed went among the residents to visit and encourage them to join in the activity.

Cella Autman, director of activity, had the dining room filled with balloons and streamers and had assembled many residents.

While 'Happy Birthday' was sung, the recipients were handed their gifts. The ladies served refreshments, and all enjoyed the music.

One of the recipients, on behalf of all, said that this was the best birthday party she ever had and thanked the auxiliary for making it possible.

Hancock Women's Club

The Hancock Women's Club will hold a luncheon meeting, to include installation of officers for the coming year, at 11 a.m. Thursday, March 14 at Rooster's Restaurant, Hwy. 603, Kiln. Membership dues of $8 per year are due and may be paid at the meeting.

Pass Christian Senior Citizens

The Pass Christian Senior Citizens held their monthly birthday luncheon on Wednesday, Feb. 27. There were 22 members and five guests present. The guests were Supervisor Sam LaRosa, Dolores Peralta, Barbara Talley, Sammy Cucurullo and Robert Furrer. Everyone enjoyed lunch, many desserts and iced tea.

Members celebrating February birthdays were Anna Meyer, Darlene Lafontaine, Marty Holly and Frona Oestricher. All were present except Darlene, who was unable to attend. "Happy Birthday" was sung to them by members and guests.

Director Mae Parker announced a class in making the 'Folded Star' (suitable for wall hanging) will be held at the center on Tuesday, March 5 at 10 a.m. Instructor will be Anna Meyer. Call the center, 452-3314 for materials that are needed.

Doll (porcelain) classes will be Thursday from 9 a.m. to 2 p.m. Instructor will be Cecel Dedeaux.

A class in making stuffed rabbits will be March 11. Mae Parker will be the instructor. There are no fees for these classes except for materials needed.

A raffle is being held on a large "Grandma Bunny" for $1 a chance. Chances may be taken at the center on weekdays from 9 a.m. to 2 p.m. The bunny will be raffled at the next birthday luncheon on Wednesday, March 20. All members are invited to attend. Each member is asked to bring a covered dish.

Orders are now being taken for ceramic Easter items. They include Easter rabbits, etc., all sizes and shapes.

A TV and Serger machine were given to the center by Supervisor LaRosa. He has also arranged for a monthly trip to the Mall—second Friday of the month. Any member interested in going should sign the notice on the bulletin board.

Committee members were announced for the monthly birthday luncheons, Vesta Gavagnie, Mary Tickling, Arments Hall and Mary Davids. Weekly bingo—Thursday p.m.—Marie Grilletta, Laura Reugger and Mary Davids.

All senior citizens are invited to attend the center.

Gulf Coast Orchid Society

The next meeting of Gulf Coast Orchid Society is Sunday, March 10 at 2:30 p.m. in the Doctor's Meeting Room at Gulf Coast Community Hospital.

Prior to the regular meeting, and beginning at 1:30, will be a special 'New Growers' get-together. This is to help the person who is just getting started in the fascinating hobby of orchid growing.

It is designed to help the beginner with basic orchid culture, requirements, terminology, potting, etc.

Questions will be answered, and new growers are encouraged to bring in any orchid that they may have problems with. This new growers group, under the direction of vice-president Robert Stanton, will be a regular pre-session prior to each meeting.

Location is the same as for the regular meeting of GCOS, and all participants are encouraged to attend the 2:30 session as well.

Program on "Developing Your Own Orchid Hybrids" will be given by Stanton. It will cover pollination, seed pods, flaking, community pots, and all areas of home hybridizing. This seemingly complex subject will be simplified and made understandable to all.

Following a judged show and tell and raffle of orchids from Hawaii, a short business meeting will be held.

Meetings are open to anyone interested in learning more about orchids. For further information, phone 875-1175.

Morning Stiffness: Arthritis Warning Sign #1

If your morning stiffness in the joints that lasts more than 30 minutes, you may have a condition called arthritis. And the earlier you seek treatment, the chances are that the arthritis can be arrested... before it does permanent damage.

There are literally dozens of different types of arthritis, many of which may start off with morning stiffness. In point of fact however, different kinds of arthritis may lead to different kinds of complications, some more severe than others.

Dr. Marielisa Sedrish is a physician who specializes in the treatment of these disorders. After earning her M.D. degree, she spent several years in either a clinical or academic training program, and received certification in one of those areas. Dr. Marielisa Sedrish, is board certified in both Medicine and Pediatrics. One of her special training is successfully completed, she then begins an additional two to three year program (called a "fellowship") in rheumatology, concentrating on the diagnosis and treatment of only the conditions known as arthritis and connective tissue diseases.

The end result of all these years of training is the ability to recognize what kind of arthritis the patient has, the understanding of what the disease will pinpoint that diagnosis, and the knowledge of the most successful treatment for each condition.

Once an accurate diagnosis has been made, treatment can be begun and the patient can return to a regular family doctor. Then, if necessary, the Rheumatologist and the family Practitioner can keep you on track.

SHAPE UP YOUR HOME For Spring

Give your home a spring cleaning

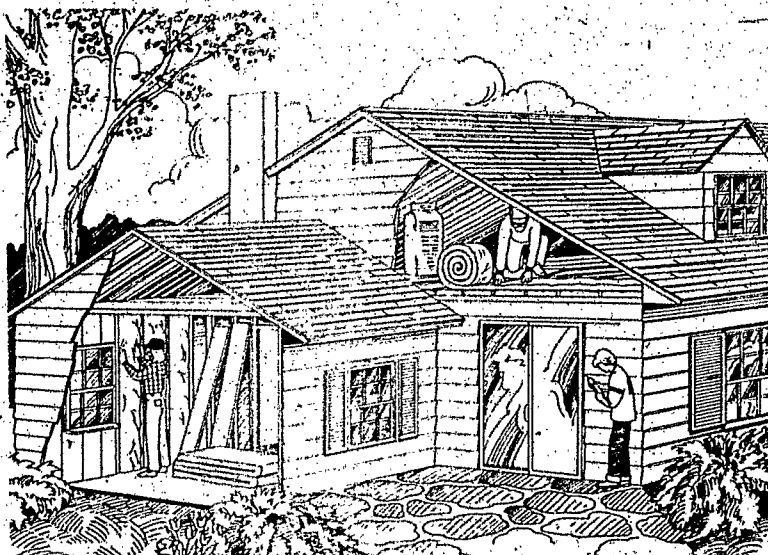

Now is the perfect time to give your home a spring cleaning after winter's harsh months.

By taking advantage of the milder weather to tackle projects around the house now, you can get a jump on spring and improve your home's appeal and resale value.

And with the rising cost of energy, more and more homeowners are looking for ways to make their homes more energy efficient.

Here are some steps you can take to help save money year-round on your home fuel bills.

Insulate
The attic is always a great place to start your springtime clean-up. While you're up there, make sure your insulation meets new recommended levels issued recently by the Department of Energy.

Adding extra insulation can help reduce the amount of energy you use to cool your home this summer, and heat it next winter.

Before you select a contractor, find out how long the company has been in business, the type of projects they've done, and ask for a list of satisfied customers.

Get a written estimate for the job that includes all job specifications and the contractor warranty. Before any work begins, a contract must be signed and retained by both of you.

Weatherize
In many older homes that have not been weatherized, air leaks can account for up to 30 percent of a home's wasted energy.

Even if you caulked and weatherstripped within the last few years, new air leaks can appear each season. Weatherizing your home now can also help reduce this summer's energy bills by helping to keep the cool air in your house.

If drafty doors and windows were a problem in your home this winter, now is the best time to add weatherstripping to help prevent energy loss all year.

Plant A Tree

Trees and shrubs will make your yard more colorful, and can also help reduce energy costs if they're planted strategically.

Plant deciduous trees—those that drop their leaves in the fall—in front of sunny windows, to help block summer sunlight. In the winter, sunlight will filter through the bare branches to warm your living area.

Hardy, low-lying evergreens and shrubs planted close to the foundation of a house slow heat escape during the winter, and reduce heat entry during the summer.

Add Shades, Blinds or Awnings

Attractive window treatments add color and beauty to your home both inside and out, and also help keep sunny rooms more comfortable in any season.

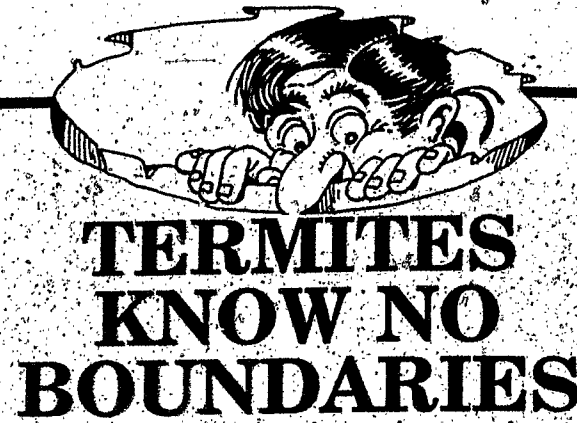

During warmer months, window shades or blinds drawn on sunny days help block the heat from your home.

Keeping them open during the winter helps warm a chilly room. In the summer, outdoor awnings will help shade your windows and keep indoor temperatures cooler.

Lighten Up!

Homeowners waste half of the electricity generated each year by lighting unoccupied rooms or squandering it on inefficient lighting sources. About 90 percent of the energy consumed by incandescent bulbs is given off as heat, not light.

Replace them with fluorescent bulbs, which convert electricity to visible light up to five times more efficiently, and last as much as 20 times longer.

Termites are hard and tenacious workers when it comes to destroying your home and outdoor property. Call us today to avoid this silent destruction of your home.

SHAPE UP YOUR HOME For Spring

Basic kinds of lighting fixtures, lighting ideas

A special aura can be created in your home, room by room, with effective lighting. The right lighting opens your home to its full potential.

You can spend thousands of dollars on beautiful furnishings, carpeting and accessories but if the lighting isn't good, all your beautiful things won't look their best, after dark.

Basic Kinds of Lighting

There are three basic kinds of lighting that work together to illuminate your home: general (ambient), task and accent. A good lighting plan combines them to light a room or area according to its function and with style.

General or ambient lighting is light to see by. It should be at a comfortable level of brightness, not hot and glaring, and not so dim there is danger of bumping into the furniture.

Task lighting should be directed to the work or activity you are engaged in. It should be free of glare from the fixture itself or from reflections off a work surface. There should be no shadows between you and the task at hand. The light should be bright enough to prevent eyestrain.

Accent lighting adds drama and permits the homeowner to control the atmosphere in a room. As guests enter the living room, it calls immediate attention to the painting in the space above the fireplace, to sculptures or wall hangings and, outside, to the beautiful garden plantings or trees that otherwise disappear from sight at night.

Basic Fixtures

There are choices to please everyone from elegant crystal chandeliers to contemporary recessed lighting, where the source of the light is not meant to be seen at all.

There are the traditional ceiling fixtures, installed at or close to the ceiling, which usually provide general lighting. They mounted 60" above the floor, using tungstenhalogen as the light source. (Halogen is a form of incandescent light providing a clear, white light that will not darken with age as other light sources do).

Under Shelves

Install lights in a china cabinet or bookcase to highlight collectibles. Easy-to-mount units are available.

Wash A Wall

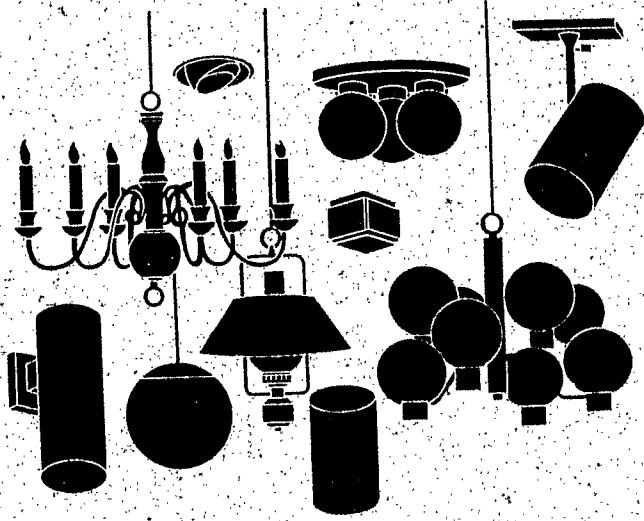

To wash a wall with light using track fixtures, mount the unit 2" to 3" from the wall if the ceiling is up to 9' high, and 3" to 4" from the wall if the ceiling is 9' to 11' high. Space the fixtures the same distance apart as the track is from the wall. This is an excellent way to light an art collection in an otherwise dull hallway.

Graze A Wall

To create dramatic shadows on textured surfaces such as draperies, stone or brick, mount track 6" to 12" from the wall with fixtures the same distance apart and aimed downward. (Recessed lighting can also be used to wash or graze walls with light. For mounting and spacing, visit a lighting showroom or send for the booklet mentioned at the close of this article.)

Outdoors For Safety

To light steps and paths, install low path lights, post lanterns or lights attached to the house. Illuminate side and rear entries as well as front doors and walls with easy access windows, to discourage prowlers and thieves.

are practical in heavily trafficked areas: entrances and hallways, bedrooms, kitchens and baths, laundry and family rooms. There are ceiling fixtures accommodating both incandescent and fluorescent light sources.

Wall-mounted fixtures are often designed to match a chandelier in a dining room and are used in bedrooms, hallways or the living room. In the bathroom, they serve well as task lighting on each side of a small mirror.

Pendants are chandelier-like fixtures, but smaller and generally without arms.

Then, there is track lighting, which is extremely flexible. It can fill a room with general lighting, provide dramatic accent and practical task lighting, all at the same time.

Lighting Ideas

There is a renaissance in lighting today with new high-tech fixtures, controls activated not only by time settings but by sound and motion, and lighting being used in innovative ways. Ask about them when you visit a lighting showroom. A few practical ideas for home lighting follows:

Kitchen

At the sink and range, install two recessed downlights spread 15" to 18" apart and use 75-watt reflector flood bulbs or compact fluorescent totaling 60-watts, either recessed, surface-mounted or behind a faceboard.

Living Room

Hang a pendant fixture, suspended from the ceiling over a table alongside a chair.

It will provide task light and save space on the top of the table. The bottom of the shade should be at eye level when a person is seated—about 40" to 42" above the floor.

Bedroom

For reading in bed, mount a fluorescent wall bracket above the head of the bed, with the lower edge 30" above the mattress.

A single bed requires a fixture 36" long, a double bed a 48" long fixture, or mount track lighting 30" above the mattress, using 20- to 50-watt reflector bulbs.

Bathroom

To light large mirrors (36" or more), mount an incandescent fixture, at least 22" wide, along the top with three or four 60-watt bulbs, or use strip lights with 15- to 25-watt, globe-shaped bulbs.

Dining Room

Always supplement the light from a chandelier with additional fixtures. Consider a ring of four recessed downlights around the outer edge of the table. They will add sparkle to tableware.

Flank a buffet with a pair of wall sconces on either side,

Smaller tree may be better transplant choice for landscaping

Homeowners and landscapers sometimes find themselves in a quandary over whether to go to extra trouble or expense to transplant larger trees for their immediate effect.

It may be better in the long-range to choose smaller trees for transplanting, according to an urban forester with the Mississippi Forestry Commission.

Darlene Slater, urban forestry coordinator, cites arborist studies showing that, generally, the larger the tree, the longer its period of stagnated growth following transplanting.

Smaller trees—those with diameter of one to three inches (measured at four and 1/2 feet about ground)—will, after a few years, often equal or surpass the size of larger trees transplanted at the same time.

"All newly transplanted trees suffer transplanting shock, but the length of the shock period varies," Slater says.

Although neither researchers nor practitioners have pinpointed any single, specific cause of the longer recovery period required by larger trees, they believe a major factor is that a greater proportion of the root system in relation to its crown size is transplanted with smaller trees than with larger ones.

A reduced root system means reduced water intake, which, in turn, reduces photosynthetic activity, thereby leading to reduced growth, Slater points out.

"Until the natural balance between the root system and the upper portion of the tree is restored, roots cannot supply sufficient water and nutrients needed by the tree for vigorous growth," the forester says.

To help trees recover as quickly as possible, aeration capability of the soil and sufficient moisture and nutrients are important. The top four to 1/2 inches of soil contain the heaviest concentration of roots. Poor and/or heavy soils, which are frequently used as fill dirt in preparing building sites, may prevent full recovery of the transplanted trees.

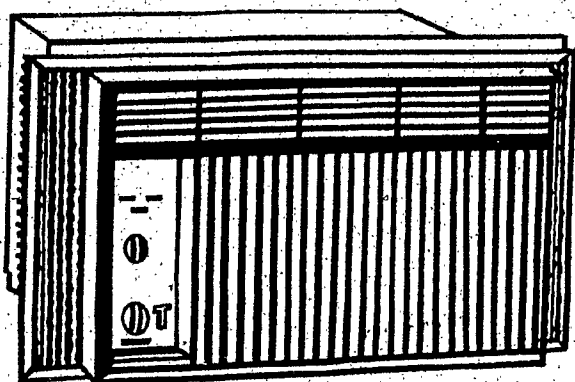

Slater says sufficient amounts of water are crucial to transplanted trees, especially during the first year. Soil improvements such as aeration, mulching and proper fertilization can hasten recovery, too. "Rooting hormones may also be helpful in root regeneration during the initial period of establishment," she adds.

Use cooling equipment wisely; save money, help environment

When selecting an air conditioner, buy the most energy efficient unit you can afford. An energy-efficient unit will cost more, but it will pay you back every month in lower electric bills.

Energy-efficient air conditioners will also help the environment, because less electricity will be needed to cool the same space.

Nationwide, this means less fossil fuels will be burned by utilities to generate electricity. And this keeps the air we breathe cleaner for everyone. Therefore, getting the most use from every kilowatt of electricity is good for your monthly electric bill and for the environment.

Energy Efficiency Ratings When selecting a new home cooling system, be sure to compare "Energy Guide" labels. The label will state how energy efficient the unit you are considering is.

It will also detail how much it will cost to run over the course of a year, based on varying hours of use and cost per kilowatt-hour of electricity.

Here are some important electricity-saving tips to follow when using your central or room air conditioner.

- Change the air conditioner's filters every month or two, depending on how dirty they are. You should be able to see light clearly through the filter. If not, it is dirty.

- Properly weatherproof your home. Weatherstripping doors and windows, and adding attic insulation, if necessary, keeps the hot air outside.

- Consider home improvements such as installing reflecting glass windows, double-span windows, and awnings to reduce heat gain from the Sun.

- During the day, keep curtains drawn and shades pulled over windows facing east, west and south.

- Move furniture away from the air registers, allowing for the free flow of cooled air.

- Most air conditioners can cool a house or a room in half an hour. So don't leave them running if you are away for a long period. Consider a set-back thermostat that will turn the unit on a half hour before you are due home.

- Run kitchen and bath exhaust fans sparingly. These get rid of odors, but they also rob your house of cool air.

- Set your thermostat to a minimum of 78 degrees or higher—the highest point at which you still are comfortable.

Your electric utility has more information on saving energy to lower your monthly bills, and to help the environment.

Topiary plants

With scissors in hand, plant scene shapes up

"Edward Scissorhands," a horticultural film? Not exactly, but there are some interesting horticultural scenes in the movie and some lessons to be learned.

For the past couple of months, "Edward Scissorhands" has been showing in movie theaters around the state. This fantasy fairy tale, funny, sad movie is of some horticultural interest because of the "topiary" that Edward creates at his old home as well as in the absolutely awful subdivision he moves to for a short while.

Topiary, as defined in "All About Pruning," one of the Ortho book series, is "the carving of shapes out of greenery." Edward is an absolute wizard at pruning shrubbery into all kinds of shapes. And why shouldn't he be? He has the right equipment.

The topiary in the film, unfortunately isn't real, but still, it shows what can be accomplished with the right plant material and plenty of time. The movie's credits list the topiary frames, but apparently what we see in the film are frames wrapped with sphagnum moss or some other moisture holding material stuck full of short pieces of greenery.

Creation of real topiary, a labor of love, is a long, slow process, dependent on the rate of growth of the plant being used, as well as requiring almost constant detailed snipping and shaping.

Edward had the unique ability to take any large, overgrown shrub or small tree and turn it into a fantastic piece of living sculpture in just a few minutes. Is this really possible? Not.

We all recognize that we wind up with many leafless bare branches after we prune away the green growth at the ends of the branches and twigs. Edward didn't have this problem. All his plants had green leaves back to the main trunk.

Don't we wish ours did. That topiary requires constant care becomes evident towards the end of the film when Edward, driven by poor public opinion, returns to this home. After just a brief stay in suburbia, Edward's creations in living green have lost their shape and appeal; they've become overgrown and twiggy.

There are a couple of other horticultural messages in the film. One of these is that houses without plants in the yards are just as ugly as houses with big pieces of topiary in the yards. Shrubs need to be in scale with the houses they are to complement.

Also, topiary isn't the best choice for "shoebox" suburbia. The styles clash. Every one of the sculptures Edward created, as beautiful as they were, suffered from the setting. At his original home they were in scale and complemented the structure.

If, after seeing the film, you feel the need to own some topiary, know that these pieces aren't easy to find. If you're lucky enough to find something, be prepared for a high price. Large garden centers may have poodle junipers, or balls on stick hollies but no shrubs trimmed to the shapes of people, animals or geometric forms.

Don't be fooled by chicken wire forms filled with sphagnum and covered by vining plants. The examples of topiary I've seen were at botanical gardens, large estates (here and overseas) and major theme parks.

If you're interested in trying your hand at developing a piece of topiary, beyond "dwarf youpon" trimmed into the shape of a ball, cone or in Mississippi Gardens

box, start with the knowledge that it is a slow process. Select the right plant.

For a small sculpture, dwarf youpon is a fair choice because it is readily available, grows well in our climate, is a branching plant, and has many small leaves. The fact that it grows fairly rapidly means frequent pruning but also good recovery from bad cuts.

Privet hedge is a good choice for a medium to large sculpture, but it isn't always evergreen. It also has a fairly rapid rate of growth. Old estate topiary was frequently sculpted from boxwood or yew.

In this age of need for instant gratification, Edward, with his ability to produce instant topiary, wouldn't lack for work. Edward, are you out there?

Nature tours, time management seminars offered next week

Mississippi is one of America's last natural frontiers. Our unspoiled beauty is our legacy. In cooperation with the Bay-Waveland Garden Club, the Extension Service is sponsoring a program by the Mississippi Nature Conservancy.

The free one-hour seminar will be Tuesday, March 12 at 10 a.m. at the Bay-Waveland Garden Club, 116 Leonhard Avenue, Bay St. Louis. Pat Patterson, director of development, will be guest speaker.

We are fortunate to have a piece of property in Hancock County owned by the Natural Conservancy. "Buttercup Flats," a natural bog in the vicinity of Highways 43 and 603, has been entrusted to the Crosby Arboretum to manage.

The seminar will cover nationwide conservation strategies as well as information on local land holdings.

Crosby Arboretum Tour
In conjunction with the morning conservation program, an afternoon tour is planned at Crosby Arboretum in Picayune.

The tour will begin at 1:30 p.m. led by Ed Blake, director and landscape architect. There is a $2 donation for the one-hour guided tour through a native habitat.

Pinecote Pavilion, an award-winning piece of architecture located on the arboretum grounds, is a nice addition to the tour. For more information or directions to "The Crosby" call 467-5456.

Time Management

What working parent couldn't use a refresher course on time management strategies? Join Leslie Shelton, counselor, Sand Hill Hospital, on Wednesday, March 13, 12:10-12:50, for some really helpful hints on managing your time. The free program will be held in the fellowship hall of First Baptist Church in Bay St. Louis.

The class is scheduled during lunch for the convenience of people working in the downtown area of Bay St. Louis. Participants may bring a brown bag lunch.

The Sea Coast Echo BUSINESS REVIEW

KOSKAN Eye Clinic

Diabetes mellitus is a condition that causes many problems in the body's ability to use and store sugar. Diabetes may also cause serious changes in the eye.

Diabetic retinopathy is a complication of diabetes which affects the eyes. There are three stages of diabetic retinopathy. The first being early background retinopathy, the second advanced background retinopathy, and the third, and more serious of the three, which is proliferative diabetic retinopathy.

Diabetic retinopathy is more common in patients who have had diabetes for a long period of time. About 60 percent of patients who have had diabetes for 15 years or more have some degree of blood vessel damage or retinopathy in their eyes. Juvenile diabetics, patients who develop diabetes at an early age, run a high risk of developing diabetic retinopathy at an early age. "Diabetic retinopathy is the leading cause of new blindness among adults in the United States, and diabetic patients are said to be 25 times more prone to blindness than non-diabetics."

Laser treatments are the most common treatment of both proliferative and non-proliferative diabetic retinopathy. Laser treatments are done on an outpatient basis under topical or local anesthetics. The laser is used to seal or photocoagulate the areas of vascular leakage. The scars formed by the laser can reduce the growth of abnormal vessels and also help bond the retina to the back of the eye. Laser surgery may improve or stabilize vision and prevent further severe loss of vision. There may be the need for several laser sessions; but, within months, and sometimes even weeks, your vision may improve.

A comprehensive eye examination by an ophthalmologist is the best protection against the advancement of diabetic retinopathy. Early detection and treatment can reduce severe visual loss due to diabetic retinopathy by up to 60 percent.

For additional information or for an appointment for a free screening, for diabetes-related eye disease, please contact Koskan Eye Clinic at 466-3863 or 868-7725.
